

SAILORS IN PANIC AT JUNKSHOP FIRE

Guests at Lodging House Next Door Escape Scintily Clad, but Saving Ditty Bags.

When ditty bags came raining down from the upper floors of "Discuss" Jimmy McFarland's saloon and lodging house, Third avenue and Fifty-first street, Brooklyn, early this morning while the junkshop of Cas-sio DeLuca, at No. 430 Third avenue, next door to "Diamond Jimmy's," was burning brightly.

When thirty-five mariners emerged, clinging from smoke and sootily attired, each anxiously hunting his ditty bag. An extra detail from the Fourth avenue police station checked loquacious disputes.

Patrolman McGowan discovered the fire in the junkshop—a one-story frame building—and aroused the lodging house guests after turning in the alarm. A second alarm was sent out, and the flames were confined to the junkshop, which was completely destroyed.

PRAYED FOR BY CHURCH, GIRL IS BACK AT HOME

Mother Remembers Biblical Injunction About "Sparing the Rod," Brother Says.

Seventeen-year-old Henrietta Whitstein is back at her home, No.
10 Williams street, Brooklyn. Her mother, William, said to-day that the girl was so angry at being compelled to return home that she had taken her last half ill. However, he said that Henrietta felt now wasn't a bad time to the way she was to be when Mrs. Whitstein decided she was strong enough to stand it.
Henrietta ran away last Tuesday evening, on the Sunday before, her mother scolded her for remaining out

Charming 3-PIECE COSTUMES of CREPE DE CHINE, $38.75

In black or navy blue crepe de chine of very fine weave and high lustre, this model (illustrated) combines the grace and daintiness of the Afternoon Gown
with the practical features of a Suit.

A huge cut jet buckle fastens the bodice of pale apple-green
"Georgette Crepe" over white net and Persian patterned chiffon, prettily draped; a deep ruffle of net lace finishes the low neck.

In the skirt the new
"bustle" effect is featured, the fullness falling in soft lines from the deep shirred girdle.
The very short blouse collar has an effective collar of the crepe lace ruffled and finished with a pretty silk and gold braided.
